

EDUCATIONAL NOTES

OBSERVATIONS IN PROF. HILDEBRAND'S WOOD WORKING DEPARTMENT

Said Mr. W. I. Hildebrand, teacher of wood work in Mechanical Arts school:

"One who works with hands alone is a mechanic.

"One who works with hands and mind only is an artisan.

"But the worker with hands directed by the mind and mind inspired by the soul is an artist."

Yes, and the artists are few; the artisans are numerous; the mechanics are multitudinous. Which will you be? It is a matter of personal choice, if you pay the price, for each one has its definite price, and nature is a one-price store. Hagglings with her does no good. You may deceive yourself—but never Mother Nature.

Yet, as all are equally useful in the big and little business of this big and little world, it does not make so much difference which you choose to be, as whether you choose to be the very best of whatever you choose to be. That, at least, is in the power of every one. Besides, the road to the front is a public highway. No toll gates for every mother's son and daughter of us has to foot it all the way. A few may swiftly run; more go in a rapid walk, but the great army of us simply plod along. Just here it is encouraging to recall the tortoise and the hare.

The full class in Mr. Hildebrand's woodwork department are: First year: C. Card, Harold Dewey, Victor Francy, L. Gillis, L. Griswold, Albert Kober, Harry McClusky, Leslie McReynolds, George Mitchell, Orville Painter, Harry Richardson, Wilber Shively, Zenas Smith, Robert Burson, Frank Potter, Harry Beede, H. Funder, Beryl Johnson, Clifford Kenworthy, Guy Richards, L. Siberell, Edward Smith, James Smith, Raymond Spink, John Turrell, K. Wilde, E. Weaver. Six or seven went out lately, as a new term has just begun and some new ones came in. One bright boy formed such a distaste for some dry study he threw the book down. "What's the use?" he said. His wise parents put him in the Mechanical Arts school and the result was splendid work. Part of the students may become irregular students. The irregulars are those who are in and out from time to time, as other things permit; a few coming in for special work. They now are John Bender, Sloan Beckman, Paul Caldwell, Ray Fausett, Owen Showalter, E. Dopp, Jas. West. Part of these are second year workers.

Frank Searle, who has had considerable experience for the short time engaged in this most interesting and developing study, brought a mounted phonograph, for which he is making a fine Victrola cabinet, horn, music rack, etc., of his own design. Mr. Hildebrand says one most gratifying thing in that work is the high degree to which it is developing originality in design. That department made the cafeteria tables and quite a number of other well known pieces of fine wood work in Glendale, Tropico, Eagle Rock and Crescenta. Its efficiency and general worth-while-ness has been amply demonstrated in a practical, useful way, as well as along highly artistic lines.

The third-year student is Paul Williams. Though but 18 years old Mr. Hildebrand says he is "very advanced"—quite high praise from a teacher using few superlatives or needless adjectives. He calls Paul Williams "especially clever." Paul has built a lot of things and is now considering a large upholstered chair of unique and original design. When I said I must mention that chair he laughed genially and replied: "Now, I shall have to make it." It will be worth $75.

These students begin to make things almost from the first. The normal human is naturally constructive—likes to see results—the quicker the better, as a rule. Quite a number of these boys could earn a living by their wood working; and having been well grounded in fundamentals, they can continue to advance rapidly.

A very artistic chifffonier and dresser were made by a freshman. Solid mahogany and quartered oak pieces are numerous, table, writing desks, piano chairs, all finished up in fine shape. The designs are original, or if preferred by the student, worked out from approved blue prints of antique styles with the high type of finish. Some of it would interest discriminating lovers of artistic woodwork. Such appreciative people have put in more orders than can be filled this year. An

CHIEF ASSAULTED

G. H. HERALD VICTIM OF VIOLENT ATTACK BY DRUNKEN MAN

G. H. Herald, chief of police of Glendale, was brutally assaulted Wednesday forenoon at about 8:30 o'clock at the corner of Glendale avenue and Second street. The chief went to the intersection of the streets at that place to put in position the traffic sign. His attention was called to a man in a drunken condition flourishing a revolver. Mr. Herald approached the stranger and proceeded to place him under arrest, whereupon Officer Herald was viciously attacked by the man. In the scuffle Herald was thrown upon the ground and his assailant was in the act of continuing the assault when City Manager Watson happened upon the scene and grappled the man by the throat, thus overpowering him. A deputy county sheriff being near was called upon to take the stranger in charge.

Chief Herald was taken to Dr. T. C. Young's office and as the injuries bore evidence of being quite complicated the doctor had him removed to Thornycroft hospital where by an X-ray examination it was discovered that the ligaments at the elbow of the left arm were torn from the tendons. The injury was of a serious nature, being even worse than if the bones had been broken. After the disabled arm had been dressed Mr. Herald was removed to his home at 1218 W. Ninth street.

The stranger who had made the assault was placed in the city jail and upon inquiry it was learned his name is Bob Saylor and that he is employed by stables at Edendale. His visit to Glendale was for the purpose of delivering horses to a moving picture company. Saylor will be given a hearing this afternoon when the real facts in the case will become known to the public.

DEATH OF PHILO G. FORSYTHE

Philo G. Forsythe of 256 East Third street, Los Angeles, passed away Wednesday, February 7, at 4:30 p. m. after a short illness of only one week. He was 73 years of age and had lived in California for 16 years, spending 14 years of that time in Los Angeles. He was very well and widely known and was a large property owner. He had many friends and acquaintances in Glendale, who will regret to hear of his death. The only near relative that survives him is a brother, H. D. Forsythe of Hartford, Michigan. The funeral services will be held at the Los Angeles crematory Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Jewel City Undertaking company in charge.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair to night and Friday. Light westerly winds.

order for a special new design may be filled there, or a patron could supply the design. The writer is amazed at the progress in such school work since 1895, when he organized and superintended for two months in Boston the first large exhibit in this country of manual training work in the public schools, which included the Cambridge School for Boys and the Worcester School.

It may be costly, but the results are priceless as essential part of our great golden west's higher development.

Here again was asked the obvious question: "Why are not girls given the advantage of such artistic training in work for which they are so well qualified?"

The answer, in substance was: Because of lack of space. Two or three girls would not wish to be in such a large class of boys. Perhaps when night sessions are permitted there will be provision made for a class of girls. They would do credit to the department.

Mr. Hildebrand also said that the work of the half year allowed in this school compares favorably with the whole year's work of other schools. Why will not some useless fortune be dedicated to such a splendid educational and bread winning work?

At this morning's assembly of high school pupils Mr. A. L. Ferguson gave out the instructions for selling tickets to the Variety show. I sent up a notice which he read, to the effect that the Glendale Evening News would have something special every day to say about that show and would announce daily the names of the five pupils selling the most tickets in the prize contest. That brought down the house.

CRISIS STILL PENDING

AMERICAN ABOARD THE CALIFORNIA ESCAPED THROUGH LUCK AND NOT THROUGH CARE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The State department declares that while Ambassador Gerard is being virtually detained in Germany, the matter will be adjusted as soon as the Allies grant Count von Bernstorff safe conduct home. The detention of Gerard and the sinking of the California have again brought affairs with Germany to a crisis. The fact that the one American aboard the California was saved may be the slender thread by which war may be averted. Some officials fear that this may not be the case owing to the frequent warnings that American lives must not be placed in jeopardy on the seas and cite the fact that the American aboard the California escaped through pure luck and not because any care was used.

ARE DEAD ALIVE?

RELIGIOUS SYSTEMS ALL TEACH A LIFE BEYOND THE GRAVE

"Are Dead Men Alive?" was the question answered in the discourse of Evangelist Celia Andross at Evangel hall, 115 South San Fernando road, last night. He said that reason and common sense, as well as the plain and repeated statements of the Bible, teach us that death is an unconscious state.

"We find in the religious systems of all the peoples of the earth a belief in a life beyond the grave," the speaker said, "though they differ in their views as to the state and condition of that life. Many philosophers and religious teachers, both ancient and modern, have believed that while the body is destined or appointed unto death, that the real or soul man survives death and the grave. In other words, they have thought that man had an immortal soul, or conscious, undying entity, which would survive death and the grave. The doctrines of purgatory, prayers to the saints and the eternal torment of the damned have been based on this belief.

"In the beginning God said to Adam, 'Thou shalt surely die.' The devil said, 'Ye shall not surely die.' Genesis 3:6 tells us Eve believed the words of the devil. Thousands of the human race have been believing his words ever since. God says of him that he is the father of lies.

"Other Bible statements make it very plain that the dead are not in torment; neither are they in heaven, but asleep, awaiting the coming of the Savior and the resurrection day. Job 14:12 tells us that 'man lieth down and riseth not, till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep.' Again in the 20th verse of the same chapter, Job says of the dead, 'His sons come to honor and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them.'

"That the dead do not even think, much less perform any actions, is evident from Psalms 146:4, which says of man, 'His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish.' The same thing is told us again in Ecclesiastes 9:5, 6 where the positive statement is made that 'the dead know not anything,' and that 'their love and their hatred and their envy is now perished; neither have they any more a portion forever in anything that is done under the sun.'

"The Bible tells us that God 'only hath immortality.' Paul the apostle, says in First Corinthians 15:63 that 'this mortal must put on immortality.' In that case man is at present a mortal being, subject to death. This putting on of immortality does not come at death. The two preceding verses show it will come 'at the last trump.' However, eternal life is the gift of God. It is not given to all, but only to those who make their decision here and now to accept it.

"The immortal soul doctrine does away, at one stroke, with the judgment of mankind by God, the soon coming of Christ and the resurrection. What need that man should be judged if he goes to heaven at once when he dies? What need of Christ's coming to gather his people if they are already with him in heaven? Why the resurrection if the souls enter bliss the instant they die? But, my friends, the Bible teaches that men when they die are in dreamless sleep from which they will not be awakened until Christ comes.

"We may rest in the assurance of the Scriptures that our loved ones are not suffering in torment, nor being made the sport of demons. There is no truth in the fabulous idea that the dead are still alive, being thrust into a molten, fiery lake. Rest assured, my friends, that a just God takes no delight in the eternal torment of his creatures. When his justice finally demands annihilation of the wicked, it will not be with pleasure that God will mete out this punishment, for the Bible calls it his 'strange act.' All who will may escape even this by making peace with God now, and becoming obedient to his will."

Evangelist Phillip L. Knox will speak at the hall at 7:45 tonight on "The Resurrection Morning." Friday night the subject will be "One Thousand Years in Heaven."

GRIFFITH DEED DELIVERED

The deed to the land at the approach of the proposed boulevard bridge across the Los Angeles river has been delivered by Col. Griffith to the proper persons, and now there is nothing stands in the way of building the Brand boulevard extension through to Los Angeles.

SAFE INVESTMENTS

LIFE INSURANCE CONSERVES SAVINGS AND PROTECTS ESTATE

The matter of providing sufficient income for support of the family if the bread winner should be prematurely removed and for himself included when he reaches the point "where his capacity has begun to wane," is one which occupies a chief place in the minds of right-thinking men and is little less in importance than that of supplying present needs and comforts. Indeed, these two ideas are the basis of all thrift. How frequently does it happen, however, that after a man has reached and passed his period of greatest productivity he makes a false step in a bad investment, and the accumulations of a life time are swept away in a night! This danger is so well known that when we look about for a safe place, where we can make sure provision, we are able to find very few things which we can call absolutely secure, for investment, which will remain so for any length of time, and which will compound a reasonable rate of interest. In most cases if the investment is perfectly secure the interest return is very low and conversely, if the interest rate is good the investment in the same ratio is insecure.

When such a place is found, then, not only for conserving the savings, but for protecting the estate in the meantime by guaranteeing the entire amount against the premature death of the provider, it is not strange that the assets of legal reserve life insurance companies are growing by leaps and bounds, because they are not only a bulwark of defense against loss by death and disability, but are one of the very few places of investment where income for the declining years may be absolutely assured.

As the institution of life insurance, like every other science, is a gradual development, and its ramifications many, the companies have had to feel their way in many directions, so the care and gradual distribution of insurance funds through a period of years, instead of paying them out "in lots" as the policies matured or became death claims, has been an experiment which the companies have been trying out, but which they did not enter into largely until they were more sure they could safely guarantee such an undertaking.

At last, however, they feel that they are on solid ground in the matter, and are all selling and pushing policies of continuous income and inserting options in their life and endowment policies whereby the beneficiary and insured may receive installments of income in lieu of the face of the policy.

When a man considers the lack of business experience of his beneficiary, and the snares for the unwary in stocks, schemes and investments, it is not strange this idea of a fixed income for dependents and for old age which will "insure the insurance" is growing very rapidly, and is destined to play a large part in the business of life insurance companies from this time forward.

Nearly all the large companies are now paying their full interest-earnings on the installments certain, deducting only expense and taxes, so there is nothing left to be desired. A man can have his insurance policy "drawn up like a will," and the company will place its proceeds in its general funds so that it will draw interest, payable monthly if desired, to the full extent which the company earns until the death of the beneficiary and can then be distributed according to his instructions. This option is especially fine if the financial condition of the insured is such or the amount of his income is sufficient to leave the face of the policy intact for his minor heirs. Another option distributes the face of the policy in a certain number of installments from 2 to 30, guaranteeing 3 or 3½ per cent and actually paying 4 or 4½ per cent on the deferred installments. This option is especially desirable if the insured is possessed of other property which will probably become valuable in a few years, or if the insured and beneficiary have both attained an age where a certain amount of income would be very likely to carry them through their lives, and with no further dependents to be cared for.

A third option is one which is destined, I think, to be very popular. It pays a number of installments certain—10, 15 or 20, and a like amount as long as the payee shall live. This option will probably fit

UNDER ONE FINANCIAL HEAD

The publishing and the printing departments of the Evening News are under the same financial management. The success of one department depends largely upon the patronage of the other department. For example, a liberal patronage of the job department by any firm or society makes it possible for the newspaper department to give valuable publicity free of charge in many instances. It costs extra money to publish a daily paper over that of a weekly, and that extra money must come from some legitimate source.

Knowing that to patronize our job department aids in making it possible for us to give additional publicity, the considerate societies and organizations of the community very sensibly place printing of tickets, programs, etc., with the Evening News. Just practical co-operation—that is all.

TO REDUCE HIGH COST OF LIVING

The Riverside Chamber of Commerce is going to do some practical work in stimulating production of vegetables at home.

It seems remarkable that an organization with such a big name should take up something on common planes of existence.

It does not even propose to set school children growing vegetables but seems to want to do it with adult laborers.

Common labor set to work on vacant lots about any town would produce enormous quantities of food stuff and cheapen living.

That Riverside Chamber of Commerce will have to be very careful not to intrude on the sacred premises of the vegetable combine.

It will also have to be careful that no woman works over eight hours or for less than the minimum wage or there will be trouble.

The middleman must also not be interfered with in distributing the vegetables grown or there will be trouble all around.

Of course, it would be desirable to reduce cost of living, to have idle people employed and use vacant land.

It will be found very difficult to do this and comply with all the laws and rules of the politicians and unions.

OBSERVE TRAFFIC RULES ON PUBLIC HIGHWAY

The question of every driver of an automobile observing rules for careful driving on the public highways is one that cannot be brought to the attention of the traveling public too often.

It should be the practice of every auto driver to not only look out for his own safety, but also the safety of others who perchance may be in automobiles, carriages or on foot. What right has an auto driver to run down a foot passenger? A driver of a motor car should keep a sharp lookout as to what objects are on the roadway, and it is his moral duty to have his car under complete control, so if a pedestrian becomes confused the machine may be brought to a standstill before the person is harmed.

What a shame it is that an elderly person finds it almost impossible to cross a boulevard without risking his life. The presence of a human being on the street should cause every auto driver close to that person to be on the alert and use due caution not to do injury to that person.

How sad, indeed, it is that a man will work hard for a lifetime and retire to a residential part of a quiet city, only to be dashed into eternity by a reckless driver of an automobile. Pedestrians have rights on the public highway that should be respected, and the sooner users of motor cars are educated up to the fact the greater will be the safety of the feeble and aged who find it necessary to walk for a few rods on the street.

MATTER AND ELECTRICITY IDENTICAL

Some startling ideas as to what man and the universe are made of have been set forth by the famous scientist, Robert A. Millikan, Professor of Physics in the University of Chicago, in the annual "Hitchcock Lectures" which he has just been delivering at the University of California. Here are some of the achievements and discoveries of science of to-day which he expounded:

The distinction between electricity and matter appears to be broken down.

Electricity possesses the only distinguishing characteristic of matter—inertia.

The atom is nothing but a tiny group of positive and negative charges of electricity.

Transmutation of some of the elements may be watched in the laboratory.

The eighty-one elements are not eighty-one different things—they are merely different arrangements of electrical charges.

It has been revealed that three elements exist which still await discovery.

One element differs from another element only because it has a larger number of positive and negative electrons in its atom than the element next lighter, and this variation in number is governed by a perfectly definite and regular law.

The electrical charge has been measured of the electron—the ultimate electrical particle.

The amazing minuteness of the quantities the scientist has learned to measure is illustrated by the fact that there are twenty billion billion molecules in a half a thimbleful of air, and that an atom is only a part of a molecule, and that a single one of the electrons of which an atom is only a hundred-thousandth as large as the atom—and yet this inconceivably minute bit of electricity has been accurately measured by Professor Millikan.

The X-rays knock off electrons from molecules at a speed of eighteen thousand miles a second.

Radium and its transformation products shoot off particles of helium at a speed of about 18,000 miles a second, and electrons with a speed of 180,000 miles per second.

The atom is mostly empty space. The nucleus of the atom con-

STUDIES IN PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

By Walt. Le Noir Church
STUDY XX.—RECEPTIVITY

"Genius is receptivity" wrote a much-traveled friend fortunate enough to spend his whole time studying the great works of the world along every line of endeavor. The definition struck me as an inspiration, and try as I might I have never been able to find a better one. But it is so condensed it needs developing.

Receptivity developed to the genius plane implies ability raised to the 17th degree, as a higher mathematician might say.

A sheep might walk up to a masterpiece landscape of George Inness, sniff at the deluding green, then turn away perhaps with no mental comment at all.

A wild Tartar would glance at the canvass and think: "Why waste perfectly good tent stuff?"

A cynical grad-grind would pass it with the sneering query, "Wot's the idee?"

A brother artist, even in another art, would linger before that vision of idealized nature, and exclaim: "Genius is receptivity."

The same picture had been looked at by all four observers, but only the last one had seen what George Inness saw and painted; and he only a moiety, perhaps, since no two souls can have exactly the same development of receptivity any more than they could have of expression. The same rule and reason will apply to each and both.

Receptivity is in the inner reflex of personality, the exponent of character as unfolded to human view; its appreciation in turn depending on the receptivity of those who study that character.

Receptivity is a condition. (It certainly is not a theory.) Then, genius, also, is a condition. Well, why not? It is a condition of having all the powers of the whole man, physical, metaphysical and moral or ethical, correlated and developed to the highest degree. If your mind be finely educated, your mental receptivity will be proportionally efficient. It will be like a scientifically sensitized camera plate which will photograph almost the invisible.

You can train that mental camera so that its powers will astonish you. Place yourself in a receptive mood, and see how many additional impressions you can receive in merely passing by a window full of various objects. Nutrition and exercise will educate and develop your receptivity, whether mental, spiritual or physical. That accords with the universal law of growth.

Remember, it is the positive qualities developed that increases receptivity. Since the negative qualities are mere resulting conditions of a lack of development of the positives, the less you think about the negative the better. You cannot develop cold except by lessening the heat. You cannot bring forth darkness except by removing light. It militates against rightful development of personality to consider negative qualities as forces, when they are not real things at all; only the absence of real things. To consider them as forces is against the basic law of education, which has to do with positive qualities and forces only.

To keep that distinction in your mind will greatly simplify your understanding of what education really is, and give quicker and more scientific results in your efforts to educate yourself.

Development of receptivity is not accidental. It requires a purpose with a strong motive back of it—strong enough to persist in the natural means for insuring such development. Then it becomes a certainty—merely a matter of time and rightful effort.

Here then is further reason for taking the best possible care of the physical body, for on its condition depend both receptivity and expression. As you can give no expression to any thought or feeling without some motion of one or more parts of the physical body, just so you can have no receptivity except through the active response of some physical organ to whatever impression is received.

Aside from revelation, there must be a moral law of nature obligating us to render an accurate account of what use we make of the powers with which we were endowed. Then it follows, as surely as night follows day, that any voluntary act that we know, or have reason to believe, will injure our physical body either in its receptivity or expression, is a grave violation of moral law for which we shall be held strictly responsible.

The physical body is the earthly palace of the soul, and we have not the right to mistreat even our own body, much less that of another.

God, nature and man are entitled to the benefits of the very highest degree of receptivity and expression of which our physical body is capable. Sooner or later we shall be compelled to strictly discharge that solemn and binding obligation.

Right there is reason for grave consideration, which the least developed of us has receptivity enough to realize, without specifying any special list of delinquencies. You know which, so do I. Is it wise to close our eyes, mental, moral or physical, and let self deceived?

more cases than any other because it absolutely guarantees an income to the beneficiary for life, and provides an income for a certain number of years to the estate whether the beneficiary lives or dies. Of course the amount of income is regulated by the age of the insured and payee. The component parts of the premium in such an option are about three-fourths for the payments certain and one-fourth for the annuity, according to the American Experience Table of Mortality. The annuity represents the payments reckoned for the years beyond the number certain. The years certain will receive the surplus interest earnings, but the following ones only the guarantee, because no annuity is participating in the very nature of the case.

Another very fine option in the policies of some companies pays installments of income for 10 to 25 years certain to the insured and beneficiary during their respective lives successively. This is valuable only if the insured is living at the end of endowment period and would only be selected at that time.

It should be understood that the selection of these options can be made at any time during the life of the policy by the insured, or at its maturity, by either the insured or beneficiary. This elastic feature of the case makes these options all the more desirable. The insured can select the one which seems to fill the need the best should he die during certain years, making the income absolutely non-commutable by his heirs, if he desires, and if he lives beyond that period, or to the maturity of the policy he can then change the option to suit the conditions which obtain at that time.

To my mind a life policy which is payable only on the death of the insured or at age 96 is not comparable to one which matures at 60, 65 or 70, at which ages the insured may need his income much more than insurance. Most men, deep down in their hearts "don't like to have to die to beat it," especially when the difference in cost between a life policy and a large endowment is relatively small.

I haven't mentioned the continuous income policy for the reason that the income is payable only at the death of the insured. The commuted value of such a policy is about three-fourths that of the regular policy, and the fact that the previous death of the beneficiary immediately reduces the premiums on such a policy, proves that a man is too frequently paying for something which he and his estate stand only a remote chance of ever receiving anything for.

There remains the pure annuity policy, guaranteeing an excess rate of interest to the holder for life, and this is sometimes very desirable. I will discuss this and other details of the income proposition in a later article.

FLOWER NAMES

Camellia was named from a missionary in the orient, Kamel. On his return to France he brought with him some gorgeous specimens of a flower which he called the rose of Japan. His friends, however, gave it his name, Camellia.

Dahlias were brought from Peru by one named Andre Dahl.

Fuchsias were named for their discoverer, Leonard Fuchs.

Magnolias received the name of Professor Magnol de Montpellier, who first brought the beautiful trees from Asia and America to France.

Anemone means to tremble with the wind.

Lavender, so called because the Romans put a spray of them in the water to perfume the hands. The Latin word to wash is lavare.

sists of positively charged electrons held together by negatively charged electrons, with an equal number of negative electrons moving in orbital paths about the nucleus, and all together the electrons of an atom fill up no larger proportion of the total space which constitutes one atom than do the sun, the planets, and our earth of the vast stretch of space included within the outer limits of the solar system in which man dwells.

These notable lectures at the University of California by one of the most distinguished of American scientists were made possible by an endowment left to the University by the late Charles M. Hitchcock for an annual series of lectures on "scientific and practical subjects."

MUTUAL BENEFIT READING CIRCLE

At the regular weekly meeting of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Toll on Kenneth road, a review of "Beckonings from Little Hands" by Patterson Du Bois was given, after the book was finished.

A very interesting feature preliminary to the reading of "Training the Boy" by William A. McKeever was the reading of a letter received by Mrs. Harry Duey from Edwin D. McKeever, an older brother of the author, one of a family of seven boys, and a friend of Mrs. Duey of many years' standing. It contained the following interesting information regarding Mr. McKeever's work:

"W. A. McKeever was born on a farm at Valley Falls, Kansas. We went to a district school, after which my brother started teaching. From the superintendency of a small city school he was invited to become assistant professor of philosophy at the State Agricultural College, where later he became a full professor. He then, while the other members of the faculty were studying the subject of raising hogs, sheep and cattle, began to study the subject of raising better babies and children, and men and women; and he is devoting his life to that study and doing a great work. He was never president of the State Agricultural College, but he acquired there an almost national reputation. He had published a series of bulletins on various subjects relating to children and youth, and one of his bulletins was on the subject of the effect of the cigarette on minors. This bulletin has been circulated all over the United States and through several countries in Europe. Many of his other bulletins had a wide circulation. He has never sold these at a profit, but has always, I think, sent them at one cent apiece.

"Three or four years ago he was asked to take the position of Professor of the Child Welfare department at the State University at Lawrence, where he now resides. Since he was appointed to this position he has broadened and developed his work as is indicated by the books, "Training the Boy" and "Training the Girl" and several others which have had a wide circulation.

"He has also lectured a great deal but I think he has not had any engagements in California, although he has been in Washington and Oregon and gave a series of lectures to the Mormons in Utah, upon their invitation. He has an engagement this summer for six weeks at the various Chautauquas. He is engaged in a fine work, and daily receives testimonials of the high appreciation in which it is held. His demands for lectures are so numerous that he is unable to fill all of them."

Besides the books mentioned above, Mr. McKeever has written many books and pamphlets, among which may be mentioned the following: "Farm Boys and Girls"; "Vacation Employment for the Boy"; "Psychology and Higher Life"; "The Need of Practical Physical Training"; "The Choice of Social Companionships for the Young"; "The Cigarette Smoking Boy"; "Instructing the Young in Regard to Sex"; "Assisting the Boy in the Choice of a Vocation"; "Training the Boy to Work."

Thirty women attended the circle, among them, two visitors, Mrs. E. Chapella and Mrs. H. A. Jewett.

VISITORS AT HAMMOND HOME

R. B. Hammond of 208 North Isabel street has entertained several visitors of considerable prominence within the last week or so, most of whom have come to Southern California to enjoy the sunny winter climate of this region. A. M. Borling of Hollywood and his cousin, J. R. Valentine of Salt Lake City, Utah, who is spending a few weeks in Hollywood, were among the recent visitors to the Hammond home. Mr. Valentine is president of the Utah Bedding and Mattress company of Salt Lake City, one of the biggest manufacturers of its kind in the country. Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Pendroy of Great Falls, Montana, who are wintering at Long Beach, were also visitors. Mr. Pendroy is a cousin of Mr. Hammond's and this was their first meeting in thirty years. Mr. Pendroy is a wheat and cattle man. He went to Montana from North Dakota five years ago, taking up 2000 acres of unimproved government land in the former state and this year his wheat crop on this land sold for $40,000. Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Nelson and daughter, Audrey, of Arizona, who are stopping in Los Angeles, visited the Hammond home this week. Mr. Nelson is a mining man. Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stephenson were guests yesterday. They are from Portland, Oregon, and are spending the winter in a sight-seeing trip throughout Southern California.

DEBATE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Tomorrow, Friday evening, at 8 o'clock at the high school auditorium, will be held the second league debate of the year. The subject will be "Government Ownership of the Railroad." The Pasadena high school team consists of Carlos Alvarez and Mr. Winegarten. Mr. Alvarez, who is a Filipino, won the gold medal last year for oratory. Glendale will be represented by Herbert Scheuner and Samuel Durand. The debate should be a very good one as both Mr. Scheuner and Mr. Durand have had considerable experience and Pasadena has a reputation for fine debating, having won the championship last year. The Glendale affirmative team, consisting of Berna Martin and Harlan Durand, will go to Lincoln high school Friday night. Glendale in the last debate won three judges out of six, winning the debate at home and losing at Pomona. The boys are working hard for the debate for tomorrow night. An admission of ten cents will be charged all not having high school membership cards. It is hoped that there will be a good audience to greet the Pasadena debaters as they are accustomed to large audiences.

DORAN STREET P. T. A.

The Parent-Teacher association of the Doran street school met at the school Wednesday when a very interesting patriotic program was given under the direction of Mrs. F. H. Casseall. The patriotic spirit was enhanced by the decorations of flags and golden rods. Richardson D. White was the speaker of the afternoon and gave a very fine talk on the proposed school legislation now pending, and after speaking on the various measures that should be carried, a petition was signed by those present to be forwarded to congress asking that these measures be passed. The patriotic numbers on the program consisted of a piano duet by Grace and Robert Tower, also a piano solo by each; a recitation, "Ten Little Hatchets," given by ten little tots, and a recitation by Alberta Plasterer. Tea and cake were served, the red and white icing on the cake carrying out the patriotic color scheme used in the decorations.

NEW TROPICO BANK BUILDING

The stakes are set and the ground broken for the new Tropico bank building on the corner of Cypress street and Brand boulevard and the work will be rushed until the building is completed, as the banking firm is anxious to get into their new location. The building will be two stories high and will include a large store room with office rooms above. The trend of business has turned from San Fernando road to Brand boulevard and now that the right of way has been secured for Brand boulevard across the river at Ivanhoe it is very evident that the business along Brand boulevard will be increased very materially.

Every member of the lodge will be notified when these lectures are to be given and they should if possible arrange to hear them as they are sure to be very interesting.

LOCAL MERCHANT HAS TOURING CAR STOLEN

Joan B. McBratney, proprietor of the Irish Linen store, says that Glendale is certainly a more honest town than Hollywood. Here in Glendale he has left his Buick roadster and Hupmobile Touring car by the hour in front of his store with perfect safety, but while in Hollywood Tuesday afternoon he stepped in a garage for only five minutes, near Vermont avenue and Hollywood Blvd., and as he came out of the garage saw his car rapidly disappearing down the street.

Running back to the garage, Mr. McBratney gave the alarm, and in a second was in another car, which tracked the stolen machine for several blocks, but lost it when the thief doubled on his course and shook off his pursuers.

Los Angeles police headquarters were at once notified and sent a squad of motorcycle officers to the scene, in the hope of rounding up the missing car and its driver. Up to this noon, however, no trace of either machine or man had been found.

Mr. McBratney had owned the car about two months, and had it covered by insurance. The car's license number was 106,666, and the only distinguishing mark upon it was a dent in the rear license plate. Changing of the plates would, of course, be the first action of the thief as soon as he had shaken off the first pursuit.

The fact that the theft of the car was reported to headquarters within ten minutes after the machine was taken leads the police to believe they will be able to land the thief.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The civil service commission of Los Angeles will open a competitive examination at the hall of records, Los Angeles, on February 13, at 8:30 a. m. for a deputy field assessor (for San Pedro and certain outside districts). The salary is $100 per month for a few months each year, following March 1. An examination will be held on February 28 for blacksmith (machine shop), salary beginning at $4.00 per day; also for blacksmith (field), salary $3.50 to $4.00 per day. An examination will be held for second assistant librarian (Los Angeles County Free Library); salary beginning at $125 per month; requests for application blanks should reach the commission by March 1, and the filled-in application not later than 5:00 p. m. March 12.

SCOTT TO SPEAK ON CITIZENSHIP

As a part of Los Angeles' commemoration of Abraham Lincoln, Attorney Joseph Scott next Monday evening will deliver his lecture on "Ideal Citizenship" in the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

The lecture is to be given under the auspices of the Los Angeles Knights of Columbus. It is free. Its purpose, as explained by the sponsors, is to remove petty religious differences and establish harmony among various denominations.

Mr. Scott will be introduced by Lieutenant Governor William D. Stephens.

Word was sent out yesterday to the outlying towns of the coming lecture and Knights of Columbus from nearby cities expect to attend in a body.

While the lecture is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock, the large Shrine Auditorium will be opened much earlier to provide for the distribution of seats among the persons arriving in time.

The lecture is a part of the national campaign against religious bigotry launched by the Knights of Columbus with an appropriation of $70,000.

Mr. Scott was welcomed to Baltimore by Cardinal Gibbons, who urged attendance upon a similar lecture on the part of both Catholic and Protestant laymen.

If the predictions of the Knights of Columbus having the lecture in charge are proven true, the event will be distinctive in the history of the Los Angeles lecture platform.

UNCOVER RUINS OF A LOST CITY

(By United Press)
ASUNCION, Feb. 8.—Excavating for the foundation of a new prison near Asuncion, workmen have uncovered the remains of a pre-historic city which archeologists pronounce a kind of Paraguayan Pompeii.

The town was laid out in a system of rectangular squares, with diagonal avenues and buildings of considerable size and architectural pretensions. From this the local experts conclude that the inhabitants must have reached a reasonably high state of civilization. They figure, however, that the city must have disappeared long before Columbus sailed for the new world.

Nobody ever suspected before that such remains existed in this part of South America.

More experienced investigators than are to be found here have been communicated with in Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro and researches are to be conducted which it is hoped may lead to important discoveries concerning the pre-historic inhabitants of the country.

MUSIC SECTION

The music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club will meet at the home of Mrs. E. W. Kinney, 1223 West Seventh street, tomorrow, Friday, afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members are urged to be present as matters of importance to the section will come up for discussion. Mrs. Ethel Graham Lynde, the instructor, will give the study lesson on the second act of "Il Travatore."

REBEKAH SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION

The following members of Carnation Rebekah Lodge attended the school of instruction held in Los Angeles Wednesday afternoon and evening for the Rebekah lodges of Los Angeles county: Mrs. Ida Smith, the noble grand of Carnation lodge; Miss May Sprinkle, the vice grand; Mrs. Martha Klammer, Miss Mollie Arbuthnot, Miss May Lyons and Earl La Roe. The president of the Rebekah Assembly of California, Mrs. Ritter of Oakland, who is visiting in Southern California, was present and answered questions and made a very fine talk. The Gold Crest lodge of El Segundo put on the work in the evening in a very splendid manner. This lodge has only been organized seven months.

The Sunset Carbon company will build a factory at Whittier, a site having been selected, in that city. The company has incorporated and is capitalized for $75,000. The company, it is stated, will manufacture carbon parts for batteries, for electric lights and for use in moving picture machines.

Friendship must be something else than a society for mutual improvement—indeed, it must only be that by the way, and to some extent unconsciously.—R. L. Stevenson.

LA CANADA

La Canada has generally been known as a fruit producing valley. But recently a new specie either of the animal or vegetable kingdom or possibly a combination of both has been developed in the guise of "stewed chicken."

That sounds natural enough, no doubt. But last week Mr. Gardina, a newcomer in La Canada, made the revelation of his marvelous discovery.

He had thrown some over-ripe grapes out in the back yard, perfectly unconscious that he might spring into prominence as a second Luther Burbank from such a simple act.

Within a short time strange noises were heard from the region of the over-ripe grapes. Disregarding the sounds, Mr. Gardina went about his work.

Time passed on. That night when in the act of locking up his chicken coop Mr. Gardina, who is naturally a tender-hearted man, noticed three over-ripe chickens. He took them in the house and put them in a box by the stove.

It was a strange illness. The chickens were unable to hold up their heads. Their legs were wobbly. In fact, they seemed to have lost all ambition to be chickens.

Late that night, when all should be asleep, Mr. Gardina heard a faint peep from the region of the sleeping chickens. They had come out of their "stew," and wished to return to their former home, the chicken coop.

Such are the possibilities of over-ripe grapes.

La Canada citizens interested in the Sierra Madre-La Manda Citrus association have, through the influence of Mr. Canterbury of La Manda Park, secured a solution for the old inconvenient and irregular system of lemon picking. Headed by Mr. Lopez of La Manda Park a group of from five to fifteen men will go from one orchard to the other picking the lemons, which will be shipped to the association at La Manda Park. Each orchard needs picking about once in four weeks. In this way the men will be kept busy practically the year around.

Before now each lemon grower has had to secure his own pickers. Often it has been impossible to get good competent help just at the time when the crop needed to be taken off. But by having the same men at each picking and by knowing just which day they will come, things will be greatly simplified, and the men believe they will receive a great deal better job. The pickers will charge the regular price of two dollars per day.

This consolidation includes nearly every man in La Canada who takes fruit to the La Manda Park association. Within the next few days the pickers will start on Mr. Weaver's orchard on Michigan avenue.

Unable to withstand the third stroke of paralysis Mrs. Edwards, mother of Mrs. Will Hood of La Canada, passed away at the home of her daughter last Thursday afternoon.

The morning of the fatal attack Mrs. Edwards was apparently better than usual. She had been ailing for some time. But Thursday Mrs. Edwards rose early and took a walk before breakfast. Shortly after noon she was suddenly taken with a severe stroke and before long passed away.

Mrs. Edwards was at one time a resident of La Canada, living here with her two daughters. She was well known and dearly loved among many of the old settlers who knew her. Several from the valley attended the funeral services which were held in Pasadena. Mrs. Edwards leaves two daughters in California and two sons in the east.

While coasting down Michigan avenue late Friday afternoon in a small four-wheeled coaster Paul Arvidson and Janet Metzger, grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stieltz, met in collision with a passing machine, driven by a man who in company with Mr. Hayman was looking for La Canada real estate. Janet was thrown in such a way that she escaped injury, but Paul was badly hurt and was rushed off to the Thornycroft hospital in Glendale.

The accident occurred in such a way that it was no one's fault. As the children were going along at a fairly good rate, the front wheels of the coaster hit a rock. The sudden jerk threw Janet into the ditch and turned the coaster and little boy directly into the machine. The driver was unable to stop quickly enough or to avoid collision with the children.

The latest report from Dr. Flint, who is attending the boy at Thornycroft is that no bones are broken and the accident will not result seriously, although several stitches were taken in the boy's arm and bad bruises were discovered on his body. It is the wish of the valley people that the boy will progress rapidly and soon be back in La Canada.

After being confined to his home for the past few weeks because of illness, Mr. E. H. Brooks has returned to resume his presidency of the La Canada Improvement association.

Upon his return Mr. Brooks discovered that by a unanimous vote he had been elected to continue in the executive office of this organization for the coming year. This makes four years that Mr. Brooks has served in this capacity. According to the sentiment of the people, he has made an excellent president and it is impossible for them to give him up.

Because of the nearness of the election the importance of flood control was discussed somewhat in detail last Saturday night at the La Canada Improvement association. Mr. Ashley, president of the Foothill Improvement club, and Mr. Rowley of Sunlands talked upon the great need of flood control all over the county.

It was the sentiment of the people that more of the money to be voted upon at the coming election should be used for check dams. In this way the debris from the mountains would not be carried down through the canyons, but used to build up check dams and hold back the water. This would keep the water under control and insure safety from a flood starting in the canyons. As it is now, in many places the water rushes down from the mountains at full speed and cuts up the valley within a short time.

Voting such a sum of money as four and a half million dollars, many were afraid that the money would not be used judiciously.

Nevertheless all were glad to hear the views of two such men as Mr. Ashley and Mr. Rowley who made a study of the general flood control needs.

Upon the conclusion of the meeting it was voted to adjourn to the night of February 12 at 8 o'clock. Upon this occasion the Foothill Improvement Federation, which consists of La Crescenta, Sunlands, Little Lands and La Canada, expect to meet in the auditorium of the new schoolhouse.

Mr. Brooks is preparing a good program for this meeting, as it is to be the formal opening of the new La Canada school building. It is hoped that the auditorium might be well filled.

Important Notice

The Foothill Federation of Civic Associations in Sunland, Tujunga, La Crescenta and La Canada will hold its second quarterly meeting with the La Canada association Monday evening, Feb. 12, at 8 o'clock in the Valley club hall.

Important matters will be considered. The Sunland band is expected to furnish the music. A social time will be enjoyed. It is hoped that a large number of citizens from each organization will be present. In order to co-operate together efficiently for the welfare of our foothill district, we should make use of this opportunity to become better acquainted with each other.

Mr. Willard Barnum is again at his home on Haskell street. He has been sick for the last week, but expects to stay home until he is thoroughly recovered.

It is reported that Mr. Maynard, son-in-law of Dr. D. B. Scott, has purchased a piece of property on Burr avenue that was formerly owned by Captain Brown. Mr. Maynard and family expect to move to the valley about March 1.

The C. E. meeting was led by Mr. Seright last Sunday evening. It was very interesting. The topic was "Visions and Tasks." Mr. Seright gave some very good ideas on this subject and the other members also responded.

The Christian Endeavor will take for their topic Sunday evening "Confession," Luke 19:1-10 (consecration meeting). Every come and take part.

The La Canada grammar school ball team will meet the La Crescenta ball team on the home grounds Saturday afternoon, Feb. 10. La Crescenta will undoubtedly bring a large number of rooters with them, so let everyone come and help our own school boys to win this game. The winner of this game will then go to Sunland in the near future and play for the championship. Of course the La Canada team will be the victors.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kraus are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby boy at their home Tuesday, Jan. 30. Mother and baby are both doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins from Hollywood visited old friends last week. Mr. Hawkins was the minister here several years ago and he was always trying to help movements along to improve the valley. He was very much pleased with the rapid progress that has occurred within the valley the last few years.

The new schoolhouse is near completion and it is certainly an attractive building. It shows up well from the boulevard and the lettering "La Canada Public School" can also be seen from the road. This lets tourists know where they are and what this beautiful structure is standing among the grove of large and wonderful oak trees. A prettier school building and grounds cannot be found around Los Angeles anywhere.

Misses Lulu and Katherine Green attended a dance given by Miss Helen Kendall in Los Angeles Friday evening. A dandy time was reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller and daughter of Altadena are now occupying the house on Craig avenue that was

REASON VERSUS PREJUDICE

When mankind begins to appropriate the value of second thought there will be less enmity, less poverty, less trouble of every kind in this good old world. "Look before you leap" means nothing other than think before you act.

There is a good general disposition to respond to impulse, and to permit prejudice or other extraneous matters to enter into our consideration of issues or of people. The power of analysis, the exercise of righteous judgment, the application of our reasoning faculties to the subject that is before us should be developed. We take a dislike to some person; and although we may permit it to influence us on many occasions. There may be no reason for it, or it may be based upon false or unjust reports. Reduced to its worth, the cause for our unkind feeling disappears; but if not so reduced, if fostered and encouraged, it is magnified until it becomes a positive burden to us, and occasions suffering to others. The habit of submitting to the domination of such unhappy thoughts grow as time goes on; and thus from a very small and unworthy beginning, there is built up an overwhelming illusion that really deserves—and in actuality has—no existence whatsoever.

What better can there be for this year than to have a mental house-cleaning, to drive out hallucinations that have been long cherished, to purify the recesses of memory, to give our secret enemies the benefit of the doubt, and to look upon our fellow men through the windows of charity and justice and love? We will be happier, and the universe will be better because of such a resolution, persistently applied.

The next time we find ourselves falling under the influence of suggestions of an unkind nature, let us listen for the voice of reason—let us stop, and look, and think, before we act.—Santa Barbara Press.

WHERE THE RAINBOW LASTS

It cannot be that the earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a mere bubble cast up by eternity to float a moment on its waves and then sink into nothingness. Else why is it that the glorious aspirations which leap like angels from the temple of our hearts are forever wandering unsatisfied? Why is it that all the stars that hold their festival around the midnight throne are set above the grasp of our limited faculties, forever mocking us with their unapproachable glories? And, finally, why is it that bright forms of human beauty presented to our view are taken from us, leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? There is a realm where the rainbow never fades; where the stars will be spread out before us like the islands that slumber in the ocean; and where the beautiful beings which now pass before us like shadows will stay in our presence forever.—George D. Prentice.

WHERE ARE THEY?

The man who had made a huge fortune was speaking a few words to a number of students at a business class. Of course, the main theme of his address was himself.

"All my success in life, all my tremendous financial prestige," he said proudly, "I owe to one thing alone—pluck, pluck, pluck."

He made an impressive pause here but the effect was ruined by one student, who asked impressively:

"Yes, sir; but how are we to find the right people to pluck?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Officer (who has "lost touch" with the troops on field training)—I say, sergeant, where have all the blithering fools of the company gone to?

Sergeant—Sure, an' I don't know, sir; it seems we're the only two left.—Tit-Bits.

She—My husband, unfortunately, is always misunderstood.

The Senator—Unfortunately? Why, madam, it will be the making of him if he goes to congress.—Judge.

formerly owned by J. W. Cecil. It is hoped by all that this family will like our valley and people and will make this their permanent home.

The empty houses in the valley are all being rented. This certainly looks like people prefer to live in the quiet places and among the beautiful hills instead of the crowded cities.

Mrs. Harry Hayman entertained a number of the small children and their mothers Saturday afternoon in honor of her small son's birthday. The little folks all had a dandy time playing together, while to be sure the mothers had a good time chatting.

A number of young people attending colleges have had a few days' vacation the last week while the new students were enrolling.

Mrs. Fenton Knight had the misfortune last week of colliding with another machine on the boulevard leading to Alhambra. The occupants of the car were not hurt, and the machine was only slightly damaged.
